International Internship

An Intersectional Approach to Global Challenges

Interdisciplinary Studies on One Health

ALLY Course is a newly established course that started in 2019. In the course, students learn basic concept of “One Health” or solving global challenges such as COVID-19 and other health care problems in developing countries. The course is also designed for all the students to experience overseas activities including internships at international organisations. Since the beginning of the course, 23 participants from several faculties of Hokudai, Obihiro University and Rakuno Gakuen University have been actively working together. It is always great to share knowledge and thoughts with people with different backgrounds!
